OUR PROS + CONS

We traveled from Raleigh to NYC on Coach, NYC to DC on Business, and DC to Raleigh in a Roomette – here's our pros + cons!

COACH

Pros – easier than driving, could work remote so not technically a travel day, comfy seats, more leg room than flight, food, can bring personal bag, 2 carry on & checked bags for free, scenic views!

Cons – long trip, not as quick as flying, potential delays, lots of stops, not super clean, bathroom smells, spotty WiFi & cell service, some passengers can be loud / no personal space.

BUSINESS

Pros – easier than driving, could work remote so not technically a travel day, comfier seats and cleaner feel compared to coach, more leg room, better food than coach, can bring carry on & checked bags, scenic views, passengers were mostly work commuters and kept to themselves.

Cons – long trip, not as quick as flying, potential delays, lots of stops, spotty WiFi & cell service.

ROOMETTE

Pros – Private space, first class attendant onboard who was very nice, seating by day and upper bed by night, room for our luggage without taking up personal space, two seats facing each other for conversing and working on pull out table, shades to pull over windows to inside and outside of car, access to a shower, complimentary meal cooked on board (we had steak and chicken), lounge access and priority boarding at select stations, complimentary water, bedding included pillows, towels and linens.

Cons – The BIG one for us was the “bathroom” in the roomette – It was right next to our seats with no privacy so you WILL have close encounters if you choose to use the restroom. And because the restroom is in your space, the room smells like a public restroom. We went down 4 or 5 cars to use the normal restroom because we were not big fans of this! Other cons include: the room is more like a closet with all the essentials jammed into one space, the upper bed would only be accessible by stepping up on 2 designated areas (one is the toilet when the top cover is down, and the other is above the sink which is a SMALL section) which would be definitely impossible for older couples and hard for the less mobile, and then there is always potential for delays which we had resulting in 3 extra hours to our trip!
